504 RCACS Level Training Guide -
A Guide for Cadets and Parents of Training Requirements

The Level Training Guide is a resource to help cadets and their parents plan around what activities their cadets are able to participate in that are required to successfully complete their level. The following guide is intended to outline a variety of options for cadets to attend activities to complete the minimum required performance objectives needed to pass their level. While we encourage cadets to attend as much as possible, we recognize that is not always realistic.

The Level Training Guide is broken down by level, please see the page respective to your cadet's current training level (1, 2, 3, or 4).

A couple of things to note:

- Some activities for some of the performance objectives are still in development, and the information will be provided to the cadets as it becomes available.
- This guide is not exhaustive - it does not list all the activities and classes for performance objectives that take place on Wednesday nights - just the key ones.
- Should you or your cadet have any questions or concerns, please don't hesitate to speak with your Level Officer.

These standards are shared with the caveat that although this information outlines the minimum threshold for cadets to pass their levels, we encourage cadets to participate as much and as fully as possible following the idea that the more they put in, the more they will get out of the program. The guide is also shared with the intent of setting cadets up for success, equipping them with the information of what is expected to pass their training levels and advance through the program. Our hope is that with this information cadets can be active participants in their success.
